

The Manta Ray

The Manta Ray lives in the ocean and is very beautiful. People have even nicknamed it the Devil Fish. Manta Rays mostly eat plankton and their size is mostly to scare predators.

The Tarantula

The Tarantula
has never killed someone by it's bite other than an allergic reaction.

The Basking Shark

The Basking Shark feeds on plankton and isn't as aggressive like other sharks. It's not even as smart as the others. They are also slow and people fish for them.

The Aye-Aye

The Aye-Aye is nocturnal and has large eyes to help it see at night. It also has a long middle finger to tap on fruits to eat grubs. They are endangered because natives think they are bad omens.

Naked Mole Rat

The Naked Mole Rat is actually an african rodent. They spend most of their time underground and are barely seen by humans.
